Contents

Preface ix

Chapter 1

Message design 1
1.1. Information disciplines 1
1.2. Design disciplines 5
1.2.1. Persuasion design 10
1.2.2. Instruction design 11
1.2.3. Information design 15
1.3. Communication 22
1.3.1. Communication models 22
1.3.2. Message objectives 25
1.4. Sender activities 28
1.4.1. Organization for design of information sets 29
1.4.2. Intended message 30
1.4.3. Creative processes 31
1.4.4. Production and distribution processes 35
1.5. Representations 36
1.5.1. Lexi-visual representations 37
1.5.2. AV and MV representations 38
1.6. Receiver activities 41
1.6.1. Receiver processes 41
1.6.2. Finding information 42
1.7. Information design principles 44
1.7.1. Facilitating interpretation and learning 45
1.7.2. Information structure 46
1.7.3. Clarity 48
1.7.4. Simplicity 50
1.7.5. Unity 52
1.7.6. Securing quality 53
1.7.7. Limiting the total costs 55
1.7.8. Copyright 56
1.8. Information design tools 57

Chapter 2

Text design 59
2.1. From cave paintings to the Web 59
2.2. Language models 64
2.3. Literacies 67
2.3.1. Computer literacy 68
2.3.2. Environmental literacy 69
2.3.3. Information literacy 70
2.3.4. Media literacy 73
2.3.5. Television literacy 74
2.3.6. Diagrammatic literacy 75
2.3.7. Visual literacy 76
2.4. Comprehensibility 79
2.4.1. Text structures 81
2.4.2. Text indexes 82
2.4.3. Terminology work 84
2.5. Oral presentations 88
2.5.1. Assessments of speakers 90
2.5.2. Speech and body language 91
2.5.3. Speech with pictures 93
2.6. Writing 96
2.6.1. To begin with 96
2.6.2. Writing strategy 98
2.7. Credibility 102
2.7.1. Credibility of the sender 103
2.7.2. Credibility of the medium 104
2.7.3. Credibility of the message 105
2.7.4. Credibility of the context 106

Chapter 3

Image design 107
3.1. Image functions 107
3.2. Visual languages 110
3.2.1. Visual content 110
3.2.2. Execution of visuals 111
3.2.3. Context of visuals 113
3.2.4. Image formats 114

3.3. Creating images 115
3.3.1. Graphical elements 115
3.3.2. Size 122
3.3.3. Shape 124
3.3.4. Colour 124
3.3.5. Contrast 132
3.3.6. Texture 132
3.3.7. Light 133
3.3.8. Composition 135
3.3.9. Pictorial perspectives 136
3.3.10. Picture editing 144
3.3.11. Image manipulation 148
3.3.12. Text in pictures 149
3.4. Image morphology 150

CHAPTER 4

Graphic design 157
4.1. Information aesthetics 158
4.1.1. Philosophy of beauty 159
4.1.2. Philosophy of art 160
4.1.3. Harmony and proportion 163
4.2. Typography 164
4.2.1. Typefaces 164
4.2.2. Size of type 173
4.2.3. Stylistic variation of type 176
4.2.4. Justified or unjustified text? 177
4.3. Reading print media 179
4.3.1. Line length 180
4.3.2. Interline distance 182
4.3.3. Spacing 187
4.3.4. Headings 189
4.3.5. Paragraphs 190
4.3.6. Pictures and charts 191
4.3.7. Quotations 194
4.3.8. Lists and tables 195
4.3.9. Layout of text and pictures 199
4.4. Reading projected visuals 201
4.5. Reading on screens 202

Chapter 5

Cognition 207
5.1. Attention 207
5.1.1. Senses 208
5.1.2. Frames of reference 215
5.2. Perception 217
5.2.1. The perception processes 217
5.2.2. Perception "laws" 219
5.2.3. Perceptual qualities 223
5.2.4. Picture perception 228
5.2.5. Pictorial style preferences 230
5.3. Processing 231
5.3.1. See–look–read 232
5.3.2. Memories 235
5.4. Learning from representations 239
5.4.1. Learning from text 239
5.4.2. Learning from visuals 244
5.4.3. Learning from text and visuals 249
5.5. Application of knowledge 251
5.5.1. Cognitive style 252
5.5.2. Learning styles 253
5.5.3. Modalities 255

References 257

Index 279