

Contents

PREFACE

xiii

The tsunami of comics: coming to a town near you	xiii
Comics education: the time is now	xiii
Enter Drawing Words &amp; Writing Pictures	xiii
A note on the title	xiv
Acknowledgments	xiv

WELCOME TO DRAWING WORDS & WRITING PICTURES

xv

Featuring the authors, Jessica Abel and Matt Madden	xv
---	----

INTRODUCTION

xvii

Who is this book for?	xvii
Sidebar: Forming a Nomad group	xviii
Organization of the book	xix
Special features	xix
Companion website for students and instructors	xxi

1: BUILDING BLOCKS

2

A working definition of comics, with an introduction to the most frequently used comics terms.

1.1 Know 'em when you see 'em	4
Defining "comics"	4
Will Eisner	4
Scott McCloud	4
David Kunzle	5
What we talk about when we talk about comics	5
Sidebar: What's in a name?	6
1.2 Comics terminology	7
Frequently used terms	7
Sidebar: Emanata	8
Sidebar: Can't draw? Read this	9
Activity: Drawing time	11
Homework: Drawing in action	12
Extra credit: Directed jam comic	13

2: EVERY PICTURE TELLS A STORY

14

A look at the single-panel comic and how it works.

2.1 Word and image	16
The juxtaposition of word and image	16
The single-panel comic	17
A closer look: cartoons and beyond	17
Activity: Gag reflex	20
Sidebar: Putting pen to paper	21
Homework: Gag me	22
Extra credit: Sum of its parts	23

3: THE STRIP CLUB

24

A discussion of how multi-panel strips work to tell simple stories, plus an overview of thumbnails.

3.1 A comic a day	26
Creating a comic strip	26
Variations in rhythm and pacing	27
A closer look: three strips in action	28
Bud Fisher's Mutt and Jeff	28
Roy Crane's Wash Tubbs	29
Tony Millionaire's Maakies	30
Activity: The wrong planet	31
3.2 Thumbnails	32
Writing pictures	32
Creating thumbnails	32
Homework: Strip it down	34
Extra credit: How to read Nancy	35

4: BRIDGING THE GAP

36

An introduction to what goes on between comics panels—in other words, panel transitions.

4.1 Reading between the lines	38
Transitions and closure	38
Seven types of panel transitions	39
Activity: Comic jumble	46

Homework: Closure comics	47
Extra credit: Five-card Nancy	48

5: PENCILING 50

An investigation of the pitfalls and strategies of penciling comics, plus a brief look at the basics of drawing the human figure.

5.1 Penciling comics	52
Ladies and gentlemen, sharpen your pencils!	52
Penciling pitfalls	53
Penciling strategies	54
Blue pencil	54
Colored pencil	54
Map it	54
Photocopying or scanning up thumbs	55
Drawing outside the box	55
Preparatory drawings	55
Tracing	55
Sidebar: Penciling toolbox	56
Sidebar: A closer look: a master cartoonist's penciling method	57
Activity: Pencil one panel three different ways	58
5.2 Figuring out the figure 1: sticking to the basics	59
Using "figurettes"	59
Homework: Penciling	62
Extra credit: Practice drawing figurettes	62
Extra credit: Drawing figurettes by tracing photos	63

6: GETTING ON THE SAME PAGE 64

An examination of one-page comics and composition at the page level, plus a tutorial in laying out pages, tiers, and panels.

6.1 Elbow room	67
The one-pager	67
A closer look: two masters of the Sunday page	68
Segar: the page as story	68
Herriman: the page as design	69
Elements of page design	71
The grid	71

More approaches to page design	72
Reading order	75
Title design	76
6.2 Laying out pages, tiers, and panels	77
Laying out a page	77
Live area	77
Inside the live area	78
Original art size	78
Page ratio	79
Gutters	80
Tiers	80
Activity: Lay out your live area	81
Homework: "A month of Sundays" thumbnails	84
Extra credit: Comic book book report: Sunday page	85

7: LETTERING 86

A focus on lettering, both as an art form and as a technical skill, plus a lesson on using a photocopier effectively.

7.1 Hand lettering	88
Drawing words	88
Lettering is not handwriting	88
What's with the antique technology?	88
A case for upper- and lower-case lettering	89
Lettering styles	89
Other lettering concerns	89
Welcome to Ames	90
Activity: Make lettering guidelines and practice lettering	91
Sidebar: Making word balloons	94
Activity: A comic with no pictures	95
7.2 The photocopier	96
The good, the bad, and the ugly	96
Sidebar: Ruling a straight line: some tools that will help	96
Homework: "A month of Sundays" penciling and lettering	98
Extra credit: Lettering that speaks for itself	100

8: INKING THE DEAL 102

A look at inking with a nib pen, and making corrections to final artwork.

8.1 Inking with a nib pen	104
What is inking for?	104
What's a nib pen?	104
Why nib pens?	105
Selecting a nib	106
Two basic kinds of nibs	106
Bowl-pointed nibs	106
The thumbnail test	106
Nib characteristics	107
Buying nib sets	107
Handling a nib pen	108
Drawing with a nib pen	108
Troubleshooting nibs	110
Sidebar: Inking tools	111
Sidebar: A word on posture	113
Activity: Ink your own drawings with a nib	115
8.2 Making corrections	116
Basic corrections	116
Major corrections: Tracing and pasting	117
Tracing	117
Pasting	118
Sidebar: Making your corrections stick	119
Homework: "A month of Sundays" inking	120
Sidebar: More nib examples in this book	121
Extra credit: Line for line	122

9: STRUCTURING STORY 124

An introduction to the narrative arc, the most fundamental type of story structure.

9.1 The narrative arc	126
Uncovering story structure: Jessica's tale	126
The narrative arc	127
Why so traditional?	127
Why conflict?	127
Other narrative structures	127
9.2 The elements of a narrative arc	128
The five essential ingredients	128
1. The protagonist	128
2. The spark	128
3. The escalation	128

4. The climax	129
5. The denouement	129
The narrative arc: constructing a story worth the telling	130
The five ingredients in action: Cinderella	131
Activity: Analyze this	132
Activity: TV writer make-believe	135
Homework: Thumbnails for a six-page story with a narrative arc	136
Extra credit: Thumbnail a three-page Chip and the Cookie Jar comic	137

10: GETTING INTO CHARACTER 138

A discussion of character types and motivations.

10.1 Developing your character	140
Which comes first—the character or the story?	140
What is a character?	140
Character types	141
Archetypal characters	141
Naturalistic characters	141
Intermediate characters	142
Character motivation	142
Conflict	142
Sidebar: Using drawing to help develop characters	142
The antagonist	143
Show, don't tell	143
Activity: Play your cards right	144
Homework: Character pin-ups for your short story	146
Homework: Finish your short story thumbs	146
Extra credit: Character mash-up	147

11: SETTING THE STAGE 148

A discussion of some of the many aspects of composition at the panel level, and a tutorial on title design.

11.1 Panel design	150
Building a better panel	150
Panel problem solving: four basic considerations	151
Framing	151
Blocking	151

Acting	151
Mise-en-scène	151
60 panels that just might work	152
A few notes on the panels	153
Sidebar: Film terminology and comics	154
Panel composition	156
Asymmetry	156
Tonal balance	157
Diagonals	157
Reading path	157
Highlighting	158
Internal framing	158
Visual rhythm	158
Negative space	159
Silhouetting	159
Depth of field	159
Activity: Rethinking composition	160
11.2 Titles	161
The importance of title design	161
Planning your title design	161
Laying out and inking your title design	162
Sketch	162
Placement and composition	162
Letter measurement and drawing guidelines	162
Penciling	162
Double-checking	163
Inking straight letters	163
Inking curved letters	164
Touch-ups and corrections	164
Sidebar: Type terminology	165
Activity: Plan, lay out, and ink a title design for your six-page comic	165
Homework: Revise your six-page story thumbs and start penciling	166
Extra credit: Draw a folk tale	167

12: CONSTRUCTING A WORLD 168

A focus on creating a believable comics world, plus a brief look at drawing heads and hands.

12.1 Creating a sense of place	170
The importance of backgrounds	170

Approaches to world-building	172
Drawing from life	172
Sidebar: Drawing specifics	172
Using photo reference	174
Sidebar: Things to keep in mind when drawing from photos	175
Researching the real world	176
Inventing realities	177
Perspective	178
Using your imagination	178
Activity: No time like the present	179
12.2 Figuring out the figure 2: heads and hands	179
Heads and hands	179
Facial measurements	179
Variation	180
Rotation	181
Notes on drawing heads and facial expressions	182
Drawing hands	183
Heads and hands in action	184
Activity: The head's in your hands	186
Homework: Continue penciling your six-page story	187
Extra credit: On-location comics	187

13: BLACK GOLD 188

A lesson in inking with the brush, including techniques for softening blacks.

13.1 The liquid line	190
Introduction to inking with a brush	190
Basic brush handling	193
Charging your brush	193
Holding your brush	193
Checking your ink	194
Checking your brush quality	194
Practicing your technique	195
Don't "pencil" with ink	196
Sidebar: Know your brushes	197
Sidebar: Buying, protecting, and cleaning a brush	198
13.2 Softening the black	200
Techniques for softening blacks	200
Feathering	200
Using dry brush	202

Preface

Inking a panel from start to finish	204
Pencil	204
Linework	204
Finish inking	204
Corrections	204
Scanning	205
13.3 Notes on using a brush	206
Lines, spotting blacks, and other techniques	206
Sidebar: More examples of brush inking	207
Activity: Ink a panel in brush	208
Homework: Finish pencils of your six-page story and begin inking	209
Extra credit: Line for line II	209

14: COMICS IN THE AGE OF MECHANICAL REPRODUCTION 210

An introduction to reproducing comics using a scanner and sizing artwork using a proportion wheel.

14.1 Producing reproductions	212
Scanning your art	212
Step 1: Plan ahead	212
Step 2: Scan	212
Step 3: Save	213
Step 4: Combine segments	214
Step 5: Size image	216
Step 6: Adjust the threshold level	216
Step 7: Make Photoshop® corrections	218
Sidebar: What is anti-aliasing?	218
Step 8: Convert to bitmap	219
Sidebar: Print history: film and “non-photo blue”	220
14.2 Olde-style tools again	221
Using the proportion wheel	221
Sizing down and sizing up	221
Sizing down	221
Sizing up	223
Activity: Try the proportion wheel	224
Homework: Finish inking, make corrections, and reproduce your six-page comic	224
Extra credit: “It was an accident”	225

15: 24-HOUR COMIC 226

A final fun challenge to wrap up the book using all of the skills you’ve learned.

15.1 Marathon cartooning	228
The 24-hour comic	228
Activity: 24-hour comic (or 3-hour comic)	229
15.2 Onward and upward	230
The end (but also the beginning)	230

APPENDICES 233

Appendix A: Supplies	233
Appendix B: Homework critiques	237
Appendix C: Story cards	247
Appendix D: Comic book book report	249
Appendix E: Making minicomics	251

BIBLIOGRAPHY 261

INDEX 267