

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
 Part One Setting the scene	 1
Three ruminations	3
1 Opening propositions	9
 Part Two Unpromising associations	 17
2 Space/representation	20
(A reliance on science? 1)	31
3 The prison-house of synchrony	36
The 'spaces' of structuralism	36
After structuralism	42
4 The horizontalities of deconstruction	49
5 The life in space	55
 Part Three Living in spatial times?	 61
6 Spatialising the history of modernity	62
(A reliance on science? 2)	72
(Representation again, and geographies of knowledge production 1)	74
7 Instantaneity/depthlessness	76
8 Aspatial globalisation	81

9 (Contrary to popular opinion) Space cannot be annihilated by time	90
10 Elements for alternatives	99
Part Four Reorientations	105
11 Slices through space	106
Falling through the map	106
The chance of space	111
Travelling imaginations	117
(A reliance on science? 3)	126
12 The elusiveness of place	130
Migrant rocks	130
The event of place	138
(Geographies of knowledge production 2: places of knowledge production)	143
Part Five A relational politics of the spatial	147
13 Thrown-togetherness: the politics of the event of place	149
14 There are no rules of space and place	163
15 Making and contesting time-spaces	177
Notes	196
Notes to Part One	196
Notes to Part Two	196
Notes to Part Three	198
Notes to Part Four	199
Notes to Part Five	202
Bibliography	204
Index	217