Contents

List of figures xi
Acknowledgements xii

1 Introduction: an architecture inseparable from its form 1

PART I
Agamben's burning house 11

2 Tracing the complex encounters between space, architecture and art 13
3 Literal and artistic potential common grounds 28
4 The taking place of possible inoperative encounters 46

PART II
Giorgio Agamben's oeuvre 67

5 Earlier works: The Man Without Content and Stanzas 69
6 The coming politics and the question of potentiality 81
7 The Homo Sacer project 86

PART III
Towards an inoperative architecture 111

8 Paradigms and dispositives 113
9 Profanation 122
10 Potentialities 126
11 Inoperativity 135

12 Use 150

13 Abandoning the project: the possibility for a 'whatever architecture' 156

References 175
Index 187